

The Department of Pharmacology at the Center of Research and Advanced Studies of the National Polytechnical Institute in Mexico City is accepting applications for a full-time professor.

We seek outstanding scientists who will bolster our diverse research portfolio. Candidates conducting cutting-edge research and employing state-of-the-art methods are especially encouraged to apply. The ideal candidate will have a strong potential to establish and lead an independent scientific group, aiming to advance our current knowledge on a research area with impact on human health, mentor graduate students at the masters in science and doctoral levels, and to teach a specialized course in the area of his/her expertise.

Candidates must hold a Ph.D. or M.D./Ph.D., have at least two years of postdoctoral training, and demonstrate good record of productive and high-quality research. Candidates must present an original research plan with a clear and realistic hypothesis and long-term goals. Candidates are expected to obtain external funding for research.
